The modern workplace is always changing, and one of the most dramatic changes is remote work. Many companies are encouraging employees to work remotely, and with that comes a host of different challenges (and benefits!) to the future of work. Because there is less face-to-face interaction, the potential for a drop in productivity and engagement is very real. Thankfully there's a powerful way to keep your workforce engaged no matter where they are: rewarding recognition.

Recognizing and engaging your remote workforce has never been easier or more rewarding. Feeling invisible can be a challenge with remote work, but it doesn't have to be. Using Awardco, peers and managers can build a culture of support with quick, simple, and encouraging recognition (monetary and non-monetary) on your custom company social feed. Recognize for a job well done, reward good work, and see your workforce continue to thrive across borders, time zones, and internet connections with Awardco.
